Overview

David is a litigation attorney and has been practicing law since 1993. He has experience in numerous arbitration proceedings both as a litigator and arbitrator. He has been appointed as an arbitrator by former adversaries. He also has tried many cases across the State of Illinois. His practice is now focused on defense litigation, but in the past has included work as counsel for the plaintiff.

When he is not working he is devoted father of two boys, one of whom has Autism. Together they enjoy trips to Six Flags, attending hockey games, and cheering on the Chicago Storm Special Hockey team, where his son Austin proudly plays alongside athletes with diverse needs.
