Overview

Marc A. Gwekoh is an associate in the firm's insurance defense practice group. Prior to joining Meagher + Geer, Marc focused his practice on defending clients in various areas of law, such as civil rights, construction, insurance coverage, landlord-tenant, medical malpractice, municipal, premises liability, transportation (specifically involving claims of catastrophic/serious bodily injuries), property damage, cargo loss and workers' compensation matters.

Marc's litigation experience includes complex state litigation, as well as dispositive motions and appeals. Notably, Marc successfully defended a client in the Second District Court of Appeals, reversing the trial court's decision, granting a motion to enforce settlement. He is a member of the Illinois Bar, as well as the Northern and Central District of Illinois.

Marc earned his Juris Doctor from the University of Illinois Chicago School of Law (formerly known as the John Marshall Law School). He attended the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and received a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science.

Outside the office, Marc enjoys golf, tennis, attending church and live sporting events, as well as enjoying time with family.
